Selection Process & Eligibility

Members of the National Philanthropy Day Awards Selection Committee review and score all nominations according to the criteria provided (see below). The Awards Selection Committee consists may include community leaders, previous honorees, past Philanthropy Day leadership, and regional AFP leaders.

Nominations are evaluated using scoring criteria specific to each award category as listed below. For nominations to be considered complete, each scoring criteria must be addressed separately, and incomplete nominations will not be considered. The most compelling nominations address in measurable ways how the nominee has directly impacted specific organizations and causes. Judges may choose not to present an award for any category where no nominee meets the criteria. All decisions of the Selection Committee are final.

AFPCCC's current President, President Elect, and National Philanthropy Day Awards Committee Chairs are ineligible to receive an award. Previous honorees are ineligible for seven (7) years after receipt of their award.
